

How to Make a Fall Leaf Garland from a Coloring Page

Gather the supplies

- ☐ One maple leaf printout for each panel
- ☐ String or yarn and tape
- ☐ Crayons or colored pencils
- ☐ A clear table for arranging the sheets

> The download has one leaf on one page. Three panels need three full-page copies, not miniature pieces.

Follow the steps

1 Plan the width with blank sheets first

Lay three blank sheets side by side, adjust the row to fit the display space, then measure string with extra at both ends.

- Use fewer panels for a smaller space instead of shrinking the artwork.

2 Print and choose a color pattern

Print one full page per panel on US Letter or fit to page for A4. If an edge clips, check the printing guide before printing the rest.

- Give each leaf a different red, yellow and orange mix; alternate two colors; or let each person choose.

3 Color while the pages are flat

Keep sheets on the table until coloring is finished. The blank top margin stays ready to fold; children may add a name or short autumn word below the leaf.

4 Fold, tape and check the first panel

Place string across the blank top margin, fold the margin over and tape it to the back. Lift the first panel to check the fold.

- If a sheet slides, add tape across the string on the back. If the row twists, lay it flat and turn every picture the same way.

5 Hang the row or make a no-string display

An adult attaches the row away from heat and walkways, with space between sheets. Or arrange the whole pages on a noticeboard with suitable clips or tape.
